GENERAL DEBILITY and Indigestion

Made Her Life Miserable, but She is Cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Read the testimony of Mrs. E. G. Monro, Cohurg, Victoria, whose portrait is also given:

"Some few years ago I suffered terribly with indigestion and general debility. I could not sleep, and my condition was such as to make my life miserable. None of the many remedies I tried did me any good, and I despaired of ever getting better. One of my friends told me of the blood-purifying and strength-giving properties of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and I began taking it. Before I had finished the first bottle I felt better, and was thus encouraged to give the medicine a thorough trial. In all I used four bottles, and then was perfectly cured of the grievous trouble which had afflicted me. I now recommend, to anyone suffering as I did."

WITH THE FIRST REGIMENT

ELECTRIC SIGNALS FOR THE NEW KAKAOKO BUTTS.

Contract for the Work Awarded—Job
Will Be Rushed—D to Be Weeded—
A and H—Encampment.

The Hawaiian Electric Company has taken the contract for putting in electric bells at the new regimental range at Kakaoko. Work began this morning. It has been found that there are not enough bells in the country to supply the range, so the ordinary push button system, used in hotels, has been adopted. This, of course, will answer all purposes and will be easier to handle. Each company will have its own button, connected with its targets. The wires will run down each side of the plank walk to the bulkheads, half on each side. This walk reaches the bulkhead opposite the center target.

It is wholly impossible today to say when the range will be open. The bells must be all in before shooting can be allowed. At present the Electric Company is crowded with work and Mr. Hoffman can not say when the job can be finished. Sergt. Elvin hopes the range may be opened on Saturday, but the chances are rather slim.

Company A will hold a business meeting tomorrow evening.

Capt. Schaefer urges that successful contestants in the June shoots call at headquarters at once for their medals.

Before another meeting is held, which will probably not be until Oct. 26 the box will be freely used in the ranks of Company D. This was authorized at the last meeting and the officers will do the work. Men who have not shown up for drill in the past several months will be discharged and their accounts settled. The active members prefer forty men who will turn out to seventy who will not.

In case the second battalion does not have an encampment in the next few weeks, Company H will likely have one of its own.

FIRST PAPERS.

The Same Will Be Accredited by the American League.

Twenty-eight members attended the meeting of the American League Tuesday evening. Several new applications were received and referred to the Investigating Committee.

The most important business transacted was the final reading and passage of the amendment to the constitution, admitting desirable persons who have taken out their first papers in the United States to full fellowship in the order. Among the applications for membership during the evening one was from such a person. It is understood that about two dozen others will be read at the next meeting.

It was decided to introduce a little diversion in the program of future meetings. A week from next Tuesday night an elaborate refreshment table will be set. One of the ante-rooms will be fitted up for the purpose.

Last August, while working in the harvest field I became overheated, was suddenly attacked with cramps and was nearly dead. Mr. Cummings, the druggist, gave me a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which completely relieved me. I now keep a bottle of the remedy handy. A. M. FUNERAL TODAY.

Arrangements to Reshape the Remains of Jos. Nawahi.

The remains of the late Joseph Nawahi lie in state at his Palama residence. A Hawaiian flag is draped over the casket and the whole is almost hidden under the mass of floral offerings. Tuesday night more than three hundred friends, Hawaiian and foreign, called to express sympathy for the widow and children.

Early this afternoon sacred services were held at the residence. Rev. E. S. Timoteo had charge. About 3 o'clock the funeral procession will be formed in the order published in Monday's Star and will proceed to the steamer Hawaii, which will take the body to Hilo for interment. The procession will be headed by a detail of police and the Hawaiian band. Attorney General Smith tendered the former and Minister Cooper the latter.

The casket has been so arranged that the face of the Hawaiian leader may be seen. It will be opened at the residence this afternoon and again on Hawaii. Committees from the various Hawaiian societies, of which Nawahi was a member, will accompany the remains to the scene of their final resting place.

IT WAS A WIGWAG.
And the Love of the Fair Young Maid Grew Cold Instantly.

CHAPTER I.
"At midnight, darling," murmured Harold, clasping the sweet Cynthia to his bosom.
"And papa?" she asked tremblingly, for her father was a fierce old man who had on more than one occasion spoken very unkindly of her lover.

"Fear him not," responded the fearless youth.
"But he will follow," she insisted.
Harold clasped her once more to his bosom.
"I don't think," he said scornfully.
"I know he will," she cried.
"Not much," Harold assured her. "I shall see that his three is punctured and his handle bar dropped in the well."
With an almost impassioned embrace she flung her arms about his neck and then hurried away.

"At midnight, dearest," she called as she threw him a kiss.
"At midnight, darling," he called in response and disappeared in the rapidly gathering twilight.

CHAPTER II.
It is scarcely necessary to explain to the modern reader that these two young persons were planning an elopement and that the steeds which were to carry them beyond the limits of paternal wrath and revenge were bicycles.

Therefore let us hurry through the second chapter and get along to the third.

CHAPTER III.

Harold stood beneath the window, gazing heavenward, where Cynthia sat waiting for his call.

"Darling," his voice floated upward in a whisper and fell upon her enraptured ear.

"Waiting, dearest," she murmured as she leaned far over the window sill and peered down in the very mid of the night. In a moment he had thrown a ladder against the wall, and in another she was in his arms.

"Nothing on earth shall part us now," he said fiercely, shaking his clinched fist toward the window behind which the father slept.

"Nothing, dearest; nothing, nothing," and her white arms clung about his neck passionately.

CHAPTER IV.

Harold held her to his throbbing bosom for an instant only.

"We must fly, darling," he said as he drew two bicycles from the darkness.

"Mount as I do and follow me close. I know the way."

For an instant the trembling girl hesitated, then she stopped resolutely.

"Harold," she asked suspiciously, "what make of wheel is this?"

"The Wigwag, of course, darling," replied Harold with confidence, for it was the make he rode.

"Good evening, Mr. Jinkins," she said coldly. "You know I ride only the Zig-zag."

And Cynthia climbed back up the ladder.—New York Sun

Couldn't Afford It.

Mrs. Cobwigger—I know it would do me the world of good to go away for the summer, but I couldn't think of letting you stay in the city.

Cobwigger—Are you afraid of sunstroke?

Mrs. Cobwigger—Not at all.

Cobwigger—It can't be possible that you are jealous?

Mrs. Cobwigger—Of you? The idea!

Cobwigger—Then, what in the world can it be?

Mrs. Cobwigger—To tell you frankly, my dear, I don't think we can afford it. Just think what it means for a man to stay in town all summer who plays such a poor game of poker as you.—New York Sunday World.
